

DIXON CEMENT PLANT TO RESUME WORK MONDAY

AKRON SLATED FOR REPAIRS AFTER FLIGHT

Girders Which Broke Were To Have Been Strengthened

Lakehurst, N. J., April 12—(AP)—Lieut. Commander Edwin F. Cochrane, assembly and repair officer at the Naval Air station, today testified at the naval hearing on the loss of the Akron, that it had been planned to, on her return from the last flight, to strengthen the ship's structure in the area in which two of the longitudinal girders broke. One of those girders was to have been strengthened, he said.

The work was to have started April 7th, Cochrane said, and was to have covered the area where Deal and Erwin, the two enlisted men who were survivors, said they saw girders break just before the crash.

Cochrane said longitudinal girders 5, 6, and 7, were involved in repairs that had been planned. Longitudinal girder 7 was one of those that Deal said he saw break.

Talked With Captain Cochrane said he had conferred with Commander McCord, Commander of the Akron, and the ship's First Lieutenant and Engineer about the projected repairs before the last flight.

"Have you any knowledge of why the alterations were ordered?" Cochrane was asked.

"No sir," he replied.

Lieutenant Commander Wiley, the only surviving officer of the Akron, who, designated at his own request an interested party, has the right to examine witnesses, then asked of Cochrane the first question he had put in the hearing so far.

"As far as you know," he asked, "was the ship considered perfectly safe to fly without this alteration?"

"Yes, sir," Cochrane replied.

HEAD ST. CLAIR CO. TAX BODY IS FACING CHARGES

Is Said To Have Confessed Tax Fixing To Atty. Gen.

St. Louis, April 12—(AP)—The Post-Dispatch in a copyright dispute from Springfield, Ill., said Addison J. Throop, of East St. Louis, chairman of the Board of Tax Review of St. Clair county today confessed to Attorney General Kerner at Springfield, that he grafted on big corporations through "letting them alone" in tax matters.

Throop, the newspaper said, gave his resignation to the Attorney General shortly after noon. At that time State's Attorney Zerweck was on his way to the Capital from Belleville, in response to a summons from the Attorney General.

Kerner said he would direct Zerweck to begin an immediate grand jury investigation. The confession came, the newspaper said, as the result of an investigation ordered by Governor Horner of the tax situation in St. Clair county. The Post-Dispatch said it presented to the Governor last night a report of how a former race horse follower had been trying to sell in East St. Louis, a group of letters, which, if genuine, incriminated Throop in "tax fixing."

This morning a Post-Dispatch reporter apprised Throop of the situation. He immediately denied any wrong doing and offered an explanation for the letters bearing his signature. He agreed to go to Springfield, with the reporter and while there resigned and admitted his grafting operations.

The newspaper said Throop, 57 years old and owner of the Call Printing Company in East St. Louis, offered to cooperate with the state in a grand jury inquiry into tax matters.

SANITY TRIAL FOR MRS. JUDD NOW CERTAINTY

Arizona Warden Will Ask Jury To Pass On Murderess

BULLETIN

Florence, Ariz., April 12—(AP)—Superior Judge E. L. Green today set Friday, April 14 as the date for commencement of a hearing to determine the sanity of Winnie Ruth Judd, who is condemned to hang April 21 in the "trunk murder" case in which she confessed killing two women friends.

Florence, Ariz., April 12—(AP)—A jury will decide whether Winnie Ruth Judd, "trunk murderess" has become insane since she entered the state prison, said Warden A. G. Walker, announcing he would take steps today which would make it mandatory for a jury to pass upon the question.

A verdict of insanity would prevent her being hanged April 21 for the murder of Agnes Anne LeRoy, as sentenced, and she would be sent to the state hospital for insane.

Her attorneys planned simultaneously to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the state Supreme Court.

Warden Walker, who yesterday placed a death watch over Mrs. Judd, although he permitted her to remain in a small room in the woman's ward, said she had become more nervous as the day of her execution neared.

He announced he would advise County Attorney Will C. Truman he believed Mrs. Judd had become insane. State law makes it mandatory for the County Attorney then to petition the Superior Court for a sanity hearing and the court to summon a jury of 12 persons "to hear such inquiry."

All attempts of counsel to obtain clemency for Mrs. Judd, who was convicted in February, 1932, have failed. These included an appeal to the Arizona Supreme Court and petitions to the state Board of Pardons and Paroles. She was, however, granted reprieves which extended the date originally set for her execution, Feb. 17, 1933 to April 21.

$10,000 Damage Suit Filed Result Of Bridge Collapse

Lee county officials and five members of the Board of Supervisors were named defendants in a $10,000 damage suit filed by Attorney Robert Bracken, of the firm of Dixon, Devine, Bracken & Dixon in the Circuit Court yesterday.

County Superintendent of Highways, Fred W. Leske, Lucien Hemmaway of Alto township, Wm. Avery of May township, David H. Spencer of Dixon, John Finn of Marlon township and John Ennis of Nelson township, the latter five composing the road and bridge committee of the board of supervisors, are named in the praecipe filed with Circuit Clerk Edwin Rosecrans.

Arthur J. Brucker, administrator of the estate of John Spratt of Franklin Grove appears as the complainant. The suit is the outgrowth of the collapse of the Cromby lane bridge over the Franklin creek, one mile west of Franklin Grove last December, which resulted in Spratt's death.

FIVE MORE BEER PERMITS GRANTED BY CITY COUNCIL

An Ordinance Regulating Bill Distribution Was Considered

Five more places of business in Dixon were granted city licenses to dispense malt and vinous beverages by the city council at the regular weekly meeting last evening, one member, the Commissioner of Public Health and Safety, opposing all of the applications. The applications which were granted were as follows: Charles E. Hooker, 210 First street; Don J. Billig, Nachusa Tavern; S. C. Eastman, 108 First street; Nixon & Dashedbach, 118 E. First street and A. J. Gianonni, 117 Galena avenue.

The Public Health and Safety Commissioner stated emphatically that he would not vote for the granting of any further licenses to sell beer and wine in Dixon until a regulatory ordinance was passed by the council, adding that licenses had been granted by the council to some who were not any too observant of the law. He further stated that he was not personally opposed to all of the applicants but favored regulation of all places selling beer. In the roll call vote the commissioner voted alone against the granting of any of the licenses.

Inspector Hughes' Place Mayor Dixon reported to the council that he and Chief Van Bibber had conducted an inspection of the Frank Hughes property in the east section of the city, which citizens and property owners had complained was unsanitary in a petition to the council two weeks ago.

The mayor stated that before arriving at the location the cause of complaint was easily detected and he continued by stating that the property is located about 100 feet south of the city limits, where 33 hogs were found. The mayor told the council that the condition was a nuisance but stated the owner of the property had agreed to move the hogs by May 1.

The report brought on a discussion which resulted in the issuance of instructions to the city attorney to draft an ordinance which will prohibit the maintenance of public nuisances in such cases, which is to be presented at the next meeting.

The draft of a proposed ordinance which was requested by Commissioner George Campbell regulating the distribution of posters, hand bills and samples of all kinds within the city limits was presented and discussed at some length. The draft provided for a $6 fee daily to be charged for the circulation of advertising matter with a penalty for violation of the provisions of a fine of from $2 to $25. The Commissioner of Public Health and Safety told the council that such an ordinance was unconstitutional according to a decision of the state Supreme Court and this was verified by the Mayor and City Attorney.

Test Case Threatened Mayor Dixon told the council that one threat had been made recently, when such an ordinance was discussed, by an individual who announced that a test case would follow the passage of such an ordinance in Dixon. The proposed ordinance included the practice of posting on poles, curbs or any other property controlled by the city of any advertising matter under the same penalty, excepting churches and schools who had secured a permit from the mayor.

Commissioner Campbell favored a $10 daily license fee for bill peddlers and this was reduced to $6 and finally the measure was referred back to the city attorney to draft a new ordinance and present it at the next meeting.

City Attorney Gannon reported on the application of Charles Crabtree to erect a gasoline service station at Lincoln avenue and Seventh street, which was granted by the council.

Ferris Hines Is Enroute To Orient

S. M. Hinds has received word from his son, Ferris, to the effect that he has signed as a member of the crew aboard the S. S. President Cleveland of the American Mail Line and was sailing last Saturday from Seattle for Japan.

Ferris stated that the ship would stop at Vancouver, B. C. to take on mail and passengers and would then take the northern route known as the Great Circle to Kona, Japan.

The President Cleveland is a 21-ton passenger ship and replaces the President Madison, which capsize recently with a loss of several lives at Todd's dry dock, Seattle Wash. While in Manila, Ferris says, he expects to see some of his dad's old "stamping ground" of more than three decades ago.

Over 200 Employees Will Return to Work: Three Eight-Hour Shifts Planned

Inactivity Of Year And Half To End Coming Week

Superintendent Lyle E. Smith of the Medusa Cement Company plant east of the city gave out a most encouraging announcement today, stating that the plant would start operation Monday morning with a force of more than 200 employees. Three eight-hour shifts will be employed immediately in overhauling and repairing all of the equipment in preparation for a busy summer season. The announcement was one of the most hopeful bits of information that has been received in Dixon in many months and with the resumption of operation of the cement plant, will end a period of inactivity extending over a period of more than 18 months.

For several days a program has been under consideration for the reopening of the plant and Superintendent Smith has been working out a plan whereby as many men from Dixon as is possible will be furnished with employment. At the present time about one hundred of the former employees are at work overhauling the machinery and getting it in readiness for the manufacture of cement.

EXPECT STATE ORDER In announcing the reopening of the plant, Superintendent Smith stated that with the present outlook, probably only four kilns, which represent about 50 per cent of the capacity of the mills would be operated. Several days will be required for the complete overhauling of the entire plant and all former employees are to be given preference in the resumption of operations.

Officials of the Medusa Company are looking forward to a good share of business from the state orders for cement, which are again up for consideration today, according to reports. With a fair share of this state business and the orders now on hand, it is presumed that the plant will operate until late next winter. With this outlook in view Superintendent Smith has outlined a plan by which he hopes to furnish employment for many Dixon men.

It was also indicated that insofar as possible local help would be given in first preference and that no imported labor would be necessary in the operation of the plant, as has been practiced in some years past. However, those former employees now residing in the vicinity of the plant are to be given first consideration in the reopening of the mills.

Some of the members of the city commission are opposed to granting the application to reduce the time two hours each day, contending that the public is entitled to the protection of the flagman.

House Refuses To Stop State's Fair

Springfield, Ill., April 12—(AP)—The House of Representatives today refused to abolish the Illinois State Fair in the interests of economy.

Voting 111 to 9, the House refused to place the bill by James T. Burns, Kan. democrat, on the calendar.

Burns, a strong advocate of economy, proposed that after October 1 the state fair be discontinued and that the offices of State Fair Manager and Board of State Fair Advisors be abolished.

Approval was given a joint resolution, by Rep. Roland Libonati, Chicago Republican, that the state government refuse to reduce salaries of $120 a month or less and by requiring a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour on public works. The vote was 63 to 43.

PAROLES BOARD TAKES SLAYER'S CASE FOR STUDY

Considers Plea Made By Darrow For McWilliams Youth

BULLETIN

Springfield, Ill., April 12—(AP)—The Senate today passed and sent to the House a bill providing that the death sentence could not be given to persons under 21 years old in Illinois.

Whether Russell McWilliams must die as a convicted murderer will not be known for several days.

Gov. Horner today said the recommendation of the state Parole Board on the case of the 18-year-old Rockford boy, sentenced to electrocution, probably would not be reached for several days, possibly not until the end of the week.

Clarence Darrow, who was defense counsel in pleading for the life of young McWilliams before the board yesterday, called at the State House this morning and spent several minutes with the Governor.

It was a social visit, rather than an appeal for clemency to Horner, who will make the final decision as to McWilliams' fate after receiving the Parole Board's recommendation.

Darrow was accompanied by Miss Jessie Binford and W. H. Holly, both of Chicago, who also appeared yesterday in asking that McWilliams' sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

Clarence Darrow, foe of capital punishment, was seated in the Senate chamber, when the bill by Senator Thomas P. Gunning, Princeton Republican, was approved, 27 to 11. Debate on the measure was limited.

Senate approval, however, offers no hope for McWilliams.

If finally enacted, the Gunning bill would not become law until July 1. That and the prohibition against ex post facto laws make it applicable only to future sentences to death for murder or treason.

Springfield, Ill., April 12—(AP)—An appeal by Clarence Darrow, veteran Chicago lawyer, asking commutation of the third death sentence of Russell McWilliams, 18-year-old confessed slayer, to life imprisonment was being considered today by the state Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Governor Horner will make the final decision upon the board's recommendations.

Appearing before the board late yesterday afternoon, Darrow attributed the cause of the crime to adolescence and pleaded the life of the youth be spared on the grounds he had no control over his emotions.

"Killing my client will not prevent future slayings," he said. "If we keep on lowering the age limit on executions we will soon be back to the old common law limit of England under which children of seven years were executed. It is not the policy of the state to kill children."

Sentenced to death three times McWilliams won two reversals from the Supreme Court and this time his attorneys are staking their case on the appeal to the Parole Board.

Robert E. Nash of Rockford, said the defendant had been given a fair trial.

The hearing of the McWilliams case held the attention of the board the greater part of the day.

THREE CONVICTED OF CULT MURDER; TWO ACQUITTED

Life Imprisonment Is Given One; Others Get 21 Years

Inez, Ky., April 12—(AP)—John H. Mills, Ballard Mills, and Blaine McGinnis were convicted in the Mills "human sacrifice" case by a jury here today, and Mrs. Mollie McGinnis and Mrs. Ora Moore were acquitted. The punishment of John H. Mills was fixed at life imprisonment, and sentences of 21 years each were imposed on Ballard Mills and Blaine McGinnis.

The jury deliberated two and a half hours before reaching a verdict. The jury formerly had acquitted two other defendants in the case, Fred Mills and Tommie Boyd, against whom Circuit Judge J. F. Bailey said there was no evidence.

No emotion was shown by the defendants when the verdict was read.

Trial Started Saturday

The jury received the case last night after having heard evidence since last Saturday. All the defendants had been accused of murder and conspiracy in the slaying of Mrs. Lucinda Mills, 67, in a mountain cabin near Tomahawk, Ky., February 8. Mrs. Mills' death testimony showed, climaxed weird religious exercises of a cult headed by John H. Mills, her son. The other defendants, except Ballard Mills, 19, a grandson, were sons, daughters, or sons-in-law and daughters-in-law of the victim.

The crowded court room received the verdict in silence as Buddy Stepp, Clerk of the Court, read it. John H. Mills appeared to pay no attention to it, but Blaine McGinnis and Ballard Mills paid slight-by.

May Be Appealed After being returned to jail to await passing of sentences, which, under Kentucky law, must be withheld at least three days, Ballard wept and said "I'm more sorry for Blaine than for myself."

No decision regarding an appeal had been made by the defense, but indications were that Blaine McGinnis planned to appeal when sentence is formally passed. During the trial the defense made several exceptions to the court's rulings.

Supreme Court To Hear Sales Tax On Friday, April 21st.

Springfield, Ill., April 12—(AP)—The Supreme Court today advanced the sales tax suit on its docket and set April 21 as the date for oral arguments.

The court also decided to hear the petition of Mrs. Alice Brown Huff, a discharged Civil Service state employee, who is seeking a writ of mandamus requiring the Horner administration to reinstate her in the insurance division.

Putnam Co. Bridge Is Dynamited Today

No one was injured by the blast today, but the bridge and tracks were badly damaged. Another bridge on the line was dynamited several months ago and guards were placed at all bridges afterward, but were withdrawn last week.

Earl Shelton Is Given 18 Months

Jacksonville, Fla., April 12—(AP)—Sentence of 18 months in the Atlanta federal prison was imposed today on Earl Shelton, reputed East St. Louis gangster, convicted on a liquor charge in federal court here.

ELIMINATION OF
TRADE BARRIERS
AMERICA'S NEED

—PRES. ROOSEVELT

Peace Also Essential
To Prosperity He Says In Speech

Washington, April 12—(AP)—Peace and elimination of trade barriers were held up by President Roosevelt today as the great needs of the American republics.

Speaking to diplomats of the 20 other American nations at a solemn session of the Pan-American Union's governing board in the observance of Pan-American Day, he called undeclared warfare between Paraguay and Bolivia and Peru and Colombia a "backward step."

His address had been anxiously awaited throughout the Americas, whose statesmen have joined with the United States, and the League of Nations in vain attempts to obtain peace.

More important to some of them however, was his proposal that the American governments move promptly to eliminate inter-American trade barriers. Standing before the great mahogany table from the Dominican republic, and which were seated the chiefs of missions of 20 nations, the President called upon their governments to initiate steps to "abolish all unnecessary and artificial barriers and restrictions which now hamper the healthy flow of trade between the peoples of the American republics."

His address preceded presentation by Minister Pedro Araya of Venezuela in the Hall of the Americas of a bust of General Francisco Miranda, South American independence leader.

Secretary Hull received the gift and it was unveiled by the Minister's daughter, Senorita Isabel de Araya.

Arthur McKee conducted a very spirited song service in which several members of the choir were asked to sing verses of the songs as solos. This added considerable interest to the service. The great choir gives a very inspiring atmosphere to all the services.

Mrs. McKee conducted another of the series of young people's services at the Christian church yesterday evening. These meetings are being well supported by the young people. They are a source of much inspiration and good. Mrs. McKee always has a message of helpfulness to young Christians and an appeal to those who have not become so to dedicate their lives to Christ. She also conducted the second meeting for women this afternoon at the First Baptist church. The next young people's meeting will be at the Christian church Thursday evening at 6:45.

Out of Town Visitors

Rev. W. E. Seesholtz, presiding elder of the District of Illinois of the Union Evangelical churches, was present at the service last night and offered the prayer. There were also a few visitors from nearby communities.

Rev. Cantrell stressed the remarkable influence of Jesus all through the centuries and held Him up as the perfect example. He said in part:

"When any great man of world reputation comes to visit the United States, a man of similar reputation and greatness is chosen to introduce him. A few years ago when Lloyd George visited as President Wilson himself introduced him to the country. When Jesus Christ came to earth, God Himself introduced Him. As He stood on the bank of the River Jordan, with bowed head and dripping locks, God spoke out of Heaven—'This is My beloved Son in whom I am well pleased.'"

"The fame and influence of Jesus has increased through nineteen centuries. All that we have in our modern civilization that is superior to the civilizations of the past is from Him. Since He planted His principles of human conduct in old Palestine, there has been a gradual evolution toward a greater and higher civilization. But I want you to know that this evolution is not by the blood of monkeys, but by the blood of Jesus Christ."

"How wonderful a transformation He has wrought. Coming from a race that had been despised by other peoples, born in a most despised place, a stable, living in the most despised town of His country—a despised country. He died the most despised death as a malefactor between two thieves on the despised cross which was used only for vile criminals. Yet after nineteen hundred years He emerges the most vital force and with the greatest influence of any one person in the civilized world. History both before and after Him, dates from His birth."

"It would be impossible to foster upon the world an impostor who could exert so beneficent an influence as Jesus has. A generation might be deceived by one but not the centuries. If, as some infidels say, Jesus was only a man and deluded as to his mission as a divine person then the world has been more benefitted by this lie than all the truth it has ever had before!"

The young People's meeting under Mrs. McKee's direction held last evening at the Christian church showed an increase in attendance at the week day meetings. However, there is still room for more. All who have been attending are asked to bring a friend with them Thursday evening when they come at 6:45 P. M.

The subject of last evening's meeting as announced was laid aside for a subject near to the heart of the leader—that of the death of Elmer Lind of Rockford. Mrs. McKee told the story of this young man who was a personal friend of the McKees.

She said: Elmer Lind was only twenty-five years old but he did what he could for the Lord. He played for us a week ago when we visited at his home. He leads two or three orchestras in Sunday schools. When he went to Chicago Saturday night he had just been working on the hymn, "It is Well With My Soul", putting little variations and special touches on it. As he left his mother, he said, "Good-bye Mother, it is well with my soul."

You have read in the papers how he was shot in the spine by those boys who were so young that he and his girl friend thought at first that it was merely some boys in the neighborhood trying to play a trick. He died three hours afterward and his passing was most beautiful. Just as he lived he died. We can't understand why he should be taken but I believe the influence of his death may be more than for the Lord than had he lived.

So many are taking their Christianity as a life. Young people live lightly. Elmer really lived. I could stand and talk about the Armory of God from now until Christmas but if we are not living a consecrated life—if it is not in the heart we'll only be living a superficial life. We may be teaching a class in church and still be dipping back in the garbage cans of the world. It is because Jesus Christ isn't real to us that we are not living the Christian life.

Ask yourself the question, "If the Lord should call me am I ready to go?" If you are born again you are a new creature in Christ Jesus all things have passed away and all things have become new. The Lord will never cheat you or rob you. I have never seen a happier boy than Elmer Lind. Are people being influenced by your life as they were by his?

Farmer's Cows Are

Back In Own Yard

Kankakee, Ill., April 12—(AP)—Charles Lawson's cows were back in their own barnyard today after being seized and returned by 400 irate farmers from the farm of George Lauffer, near Grant Park, where they had been taken by Lauffer and a constable after securing possession of them at a mortgage foreclosure proceeding.

Leaders of the farmers claimed that Lauffer, a trader and elevator operator at Grant Park, had no legal right to the cows, and to insure an attempt would not be made to retrieve them nearly 100 remained on guard last night at the Lawson farm.

ALL OF A SUDDEN

GATHERED daffodil blooms today,
All I could find to pick,
I bought a pink frosted cake
And a tall green candlestick.

I hummed a song as a storm came up
And spattered the window pane;
I lighted the apple-wood fire you laid
After the last spring rain.

I polished the amber cups you like,
And halfway opened the door—
Then all of a sudden it came to me
That you won't be back any more.

Women Rally at Washington Today To Repeal Law

Washington, April 12—(AP)—Women supporters of prohibition rallied here today to organize their fight to retain the Eighteenth Amendment and seek methods of repealing the new beer law.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chairman of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, is directing the three-day convention which was to hear Senator Capper (R., Kan.) as the main speaker today.

Senator Sheppard (D., Tex.) co-author of the prohibition amendment, will speak tomorrow.

Delegations prepared reports on recent organization within their states to carry on a vigorous battle in behalf of prohibition.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League, today urged her group to organize for a final fight to retain the Eighteenth Amendment.

In a keynote address opening the league's convention, Mrs. Nicholson said:

"The time has come when we must speak out in no uncertain terms. We must leave this convention with a determination of going back into the states and there putting up the fight of our lives, for it only takes 13 states to prevent repeal and already we have a guarantee of 26 states."

Mrs. Nicholson predicted a new political party would be formed and called for the defeat of members of Congress "who voted against the beer instead of trying to end the Eighteenth Amendment and for depression."

Methodist Choir To Sing Stainer's Great Cantata Fri.

A meditation on the sacred passion of the Holy Redeemer is uppermost in the thought of all the churches these Lenten days. The Christian forces of the world are deeply in the debt of John Stainer for his immortal music as it unfolds the story of the passion of Our Lord in his work "The Crucifixion."

The choir of the Methodist church will sing this cantata Good Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the church. The text of the cantata is in the language of the four gospels, with the single exception of the bass recitative beginning "Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by?" This lamentation fittingly represents the feelings of the helpless friends of Our Lord as they observe the throngs coming and going but with no one lifting so much as a little finger to help the dying Saviour.

The procession to Calvary is one of the best choruses of the work. Its graphic description of "Flung wide the gates" for the Saviour bears His cross "in His power and love" comes to an end with the picture-phrase "and bends beneath the burden low." This chorus, introduced as it is by tenor and bass solos, is of the very heart of Good Friday.

Other major choruses are "God Do Loved the World" and the appeal of the crucified from "the throne of His cross."

The work is rich in tenor and bass solos with a number of tenor and bass duets.

"The Crucifixion," as published by G. Schirmer, Inc., is enriched by five great hymns: "The Mystery of the Divine Humiliation"; "Litany of the Passion"; "The Adoration of the Crucified"; and "For the Love of Jesus". In some churches the audience joins in these hymns, but this practice is rather unusual in recent years.

As "The Messiah" is coming to be almost a necessity in the lives of most church people at the Christmas season, so Stainer's "Crucifixion" is most fitting on Good Friday. As one values one's religious education the recurrent enjoyment of these Biblical messages in immortal music becomes more and more essential. This is especially true with children and young people. In these new days many parents are wise enough to prepare their children for these rich concerts so the family may enjoy them together.

The Methodist choir has been living with this cantata for many weeks and will interpret it in true form.

High Lights in News of Avenue

Starting down the Avenue today the first thing which attracted our attention was a florist's window, a riot of blossoms in springtime beauty, Easter lilies, monthly roses in bloom, freesia, snap dragons in various dainty shades, etc., etc.

We saw, no—head Chester Barringer in a stern tone, admonishing a customer for driving a car with brakes that may fail to work.

Joe Miller at Boynton Richards was noted trimming a window, starting with an attractive sign which read "America Has Gone Plaid."

And a bit farther on we were informed that Mrs. Louise Sheldon of Polo was a Dixon shopper today.

CINE-MODES AH-OY, THERE SAILOR!

Smart Hollywoodians Adopt the Brimmed Hat

MURIEL EVANS

HOLLYWOOD—You don't have to down to the sea in ships to wear a sailor hat these days. Everybody out here has at least one!

Muriel Evans wears a checkered black and white cellophane sailor, with velvet bow and banding for trim, that repeats the checked black and white of her Ascot tie scarf.

Sheila Terry, dancing at the Coconut Grove with an unknown, wore a midnight blue taffeta ensemble—the jacket like a man's Tux—topped by a white pique sailor, like her white pique vest.

Benita Hume, shopping along the Boulevard, wore a grayish tan tailored suit, with a blouse and scarf of mulberry red crepe, and a mulberry red straw sailor hat.

Patricia Ellis, lunching with her mother, Mrs. Alexander Lertwich, and Reginald Owen, at Sardi's, wore a black crepe dress with white ruffled collar and a black shiny hat, with white band.

Maureen O'Hara, at the polo game with Buddy Rogers, wore a Shetland tweed suit, cut with raglan sleeves and a narrow brown patent leather belt, a pink blouse and a brown sailor hat banded in brown and pink.

Lunching at the Brown Derby with Al Jolson, Ruby Keler wore a black and white ensemble, with a shallow crowned white pique sailor, like her short jacket's pique.

Brighten the Youngsters' Easter With These Simple Tricks; They'll Like Them

By SISTER MARY

When the Easter bunny comes this year perhaps he will delight the children with some Easter styles from the kitchen.

In the first place save every egg-shell you use in cooking. Carefully crack and make an opening and then rinse and dry the shell. These shells can be used for many purposes, such as molds for desserts, containers for candy and small Easter gifts or quaintly styled Easter eggs.

One of the most fascinating fashions in Easter eggs is that of filling an empty shell with tiny candy eggs or jelly beans. After rinsing and drying, the shell is carefully dipped into dye, taking care that no dye gets inside the shell. After thorough drying they are filled with the candy. The colored end with the hole is covered with gay paper of a contrasting color, pasted firmly over the hole to keep the candies in. The ends of the paper are fringed and twisted.

Another elaborate egg is made by painting a face on one side of the empty eggshell. When this is dry it is put into a little tissue paper ruff and pasted onto a flat piece of cardboard. A little hat can be made and pasted on the top of the egg.

A most attractive Easter dessert is made by filling the empty egg shells with different colored gelatin. Liquid gelatin, colored and flavored as you please, is poured through the opening in the small end of the egg. A small paper funnel made of stiff parchment paper is an aid in pouring the gelatin into the shell. Let the gelatin stand in the molds at least eight hours to become firm and thoroughly chilled. When ready to serve dip each egg into hot water. This melts the gelatin on the shell. Then crack the shell in many places and remove it just as you would from a hard-cooked egg. Pile the eggs on a chilled serving dish and serve with whipped cream.

Variegated "eggs" can be made by using two or three different flavors and colors of gelatin in one shell.

An "eggs-tremley" clever for tags prepared for the annual egg hunt is to write the children's names on the eggs. Even tiny persons unable to read much, experience quite a thrill to find their very own egg expressly prepared for them by the Easter bunny.

The trick of writing on eggs is simple. First choose white eggs and hard-cook them as usual. Then dye them in the ordinary commercial dyes, using light colors. And now comes the trick. Write the name on the egg with a stub pen dipped in melted wax or olive agent, in the production of leather. Today is not boiled—hence no such condition exists.

These beliefs often work serious hardships on industries. An excellent illustration of this is the widespread belief that seafoods should not be used with milk, and yet this has absolutely no ground, in fact. Many people with just ordinary digestions are able to eat all kinds of seafood, including lobsters, crab-meat, oysters, etc.—drink milk, for the liquid at the meal, and finish with ice cream for dessert. I should like to suggest to the homemaker that definite study be given to the effect these untrue statements have had on your tables. Perhaps such have meant denial of delightful foods to yourself and to your family.

A similar statement equally inaccurate is often made as to the efficiency of various combinations of certain foods. Advertising has had much to do with shaping the popular beliefs in regard to products, and today we are serving and eating many things that a few years ago would not have been considered foods at all.

It is doubtful if anything in our life has been changed as much as the foods which we eat. All of the research and all of the studies that have been made of composition of foods has led to a definite trend toward the maintenance of health rather than the cure of disease. The Chinese are said to employ their doctors to keep them well. If one is allowed to become ill, the doctor's pay stops. In other words, he does not get paid for curing, but for maintaining one's health. The family table is the best doctor in the world.

The Lenten season really offers an excellent opportunity for recovery from the long pull of winter. Each year most of us get a spring fever, yet fail to realize that an improper diet will produce this same feeling at any time of the year. This indicates that a studied change of diet, carefully balanced, will go far toward keeping one's vitality up to par. It means much to have plenty of vim, vigor, and vitality to avoid colds and sickness at the beginning

And a bit farther on we were informed that Mrs. Louise Sheldon of Polo was a Dixon shopper today.

A group of women in a millinery shop today talked of the advantages and disadvantages of wearing the color grey which just now is so popular. One either is greatly flattered by this color or made to look sallow and forlorn. With the plentiful addition of the proper shade of rouge almost everyone may wear it.

Did you hear the story of the man who is endeavoring to raise an Easter lily and who after planting the bulb from last year after a rest of a long winter in the cellar, and replanting it, and then picking it up and exhibiting it to the family with the poor roots dangling, and who then planted it upside down, has now his Easter lily in the yard, in a hot bed with onions and lettuce. To the amazement of all, himself included, the abused plant has bravely borne a small blossom, blooming without foliage, curling up at one like a star from the earth. This is a fact, even to the digging of the bulb from the flower pot, to see if it still lived, and it did.

Then in another store we encountered a gentleman from Mt. Morris, a newspaper man informing the merchants that "next Sunday is Easter in Mount Morris," and striving to obtain ads for his paper.

Have you seen some of that beautiful dollar stationery which the Telegraph is selling with your name and address printed on 100 envelopes and two hundred sheets of Hammermill bond paper? Well, you just call at the Telegraph and ask for Harry Moore, he will tell you of this wonderful bargain. All for $1.00.

Tuning in most any time now on station WOC, Davenport, one may hear the pleasing well modulated voice of a Dixon boy, Ronald Reagan, who has made good as one of their chief announcers. He will broadcast the ball games this season and all the sports.

Erroneous Beliefs Combination Foods

How often the homemaker must change her plans, or alter her menus because of erroneous statements made respecting foods or food combinations.

Some years ago an article was published which gathered together the various food superstitions or traditions which existed in different parts of the country. I remember one of those was that cherries in any form should never be served with anything other than milk, and that milk and cherries should never be combined in a recipe. There is said to be a kind of wild cherry which is known as choke cherry, and never appears in market, the acid in which makes it unwise to combine it with milk. However, certainly today the modern homemaker does not disturb her menu plans up to avoid the use of milk at the time when cherries in any form appear on the menus.

In certain sections of the middle west, it is believed that tea should never be used with certain forms of meat. It is stated that the action of the tea is to make the meat like leather and prevent digestion. Probably this arose from the old method of boiling tea, which frees the tannin, or tannic acid, in the production of leather. Today is not boiled—hence no such condition exists.

These beliefs often work serious hardships on industries. An excellent illustration of this is the widespread belief that seafoods should not be used with milk, and yet this has absolutely no ground, in fact. Many people with just ordinary digestions are able to eat all kinds of seafood, including lobsters, crab-

Attractive New Uniform Designed for 4-H Club Girls

WHEN the boys and girls from all over the United States representing almost a million of tomorrow's young rural leaders, meet in Washington, D. C., for their Seventh National 4-H Club Camp this June, the girls are going to look very trim and attractive, according to Mary Grace Ramey.

The girls will be wearing a smart new uniform which she describes in an article in the April COUNTRY GENTLEMAN as being so simply designed that any girl can make one for herself.

The smooth sheen of the cotton broadcloth, in the lovely 4-H green color, of which the dress and jacket are made, makes it a costume any girl will like to wear all during the summer, Mrs. Ramey explains.

"The dress itself has no sleeves," she says, "but the shoulders are extended to cover the tops of the arms just a wee bit. It gives one a feeling of being completely dressed when it is made this way. The detachable collar is of white broadcloth and the tie is of white silk crepe. The white pearl buckle fastening the belt carries out the white and green idea."

"This year the skirt is to be a bit longer—the correct measurement is just twelve inches from the floor. The blouse extends below the waistline to form the yoke of the skirt, and a few gathers hidden by the belt provide a pleasing fullness. The pleats of the skirt are stitched low."

"The jacket is short and snappy and just covers the line made by the yoke at the back of the skirt. The sleeves are trim and fit neatly, with small pearl buttons fastening them at the cuffs. The approved hat to wear with the costume is a white beret, and wear sports shoes with approved heels."

"This particular costume is so complete with its smart short jacket—the very newest thing today—and the beret, that it is adaptable for all kinds of occasions," says Mrs. Ramey.

LABOR'S FRIEND IN THE CABINET.

It is one of the ironies of fate that Frances Perkins, whose appointment as secretary of labor was objected to violently by spokesmen for organized labor, should turn out to be the staunchest and most effective friend labor has ever had in a president's cabinet.

It is not merely that Miss Perkins is seeking the same objectives that labor is seeking. Her conception of her job itself is the important thing.

Her theory is that the secretary of labor is put into the cabinet to be organized labor's spokesman. If labor is to have a voice in the high councils of the government, the labor secretary must be the mouthpiece.

To realize what a complete departure this theory is from accepted practice, you need only look back over the record of the labor secretaries during the past dozen years.

Nor is that all. Miss Perkins not only feels that she must fight labor's battles; she is not in the least backward about mapping out a definite program which goes miles beyond anything that has been seriously considered before.

She is rapidly establishing as an administration principle the belief that true prosperity must rest on the prosperity of the workers themselves—that good times cannot trickle down from above, but must be built up from the very bottom, and that one of society's prime duties is to see to it that its workers get a fair break.

In line with this belief, she is trying to do two things; to get the unemployed hooked up with jobs, and to make certain that those who have jobs get decent amount of pay for their work.

Nor is that all. By the cool determination with which she has tackled her work she has put new life into the whole organized labor movement in America. She has helped solidify it, she has given it a program and she has enormously increased its influence.

When labor's spokesmen look back at the protests which her appointment drew from them, they must feel more than a little bit silly.

MICHIGAN'S WET VOTE.

Michigan's vote on the repeal of the 18th amendment is one of the most astounding developments of the spring.

To be sure, it was pretty generally conceded that the state would ratify the repealer. But that repeal sentiment would be so widely distributed throughout the state, in rural counties as well as in the big cities, that only one of 100 legislative districts would return a dry majority—not the most ardent wet would have dared to forecast such a result.

Michigan, incidentally, voted dry before the 18th amendment went into effect. The sentiment of a majority of its citizens, a little more than a decade ago, was, quite obviously in favor of prohibition. The recent vote on repeal makes it evident that a tremendous shift in sentiment has taken place. Has the same sort of shift taken place everywhere, or is it peculiar to Michigan?

LET'S HAVE THE FACTS.

As preparations are made for an investigation into the loss of the dirigible Akron, a remark made by Capt. Anton F. Heinan, the Zeppelin constructor who taught the navy how to fly dirigibles, is worth thinking about.

Captain Heinan indicated his belief that the Akron was wrecked in much the same way as the Shenandoah, "from causes well recognized which could and should be avoided"; and he added:

"If there had not been a whitewash of the Shenandoah investigation, the Akron might now be safe and her crew alive."

The Shenandoah investigation a whitewash? Most of us hadn't heard that charge before; but Captain Heinan's remarks made inescapably clear the necessity of a thorough-going investigation into this latest crash which shall bring out all of the facts without fear or favor. Let's have all the facts, even if a few important toes do get stepped on.

I can't conceive of the old saloon being allowed to come back. . . . However, even the old saloon was preferable to the modern speakeasy. — Mrs. Charles R. Sabin, anti-prohibition leader.

There is no thirst on the part of the people like their thirst for order, and no demand as insistent as their demand for safety.—Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war.

Poor Duncy! He was in a plight that almost made him shake with fright. The limb that he was hanging from looked far from very strong.

A frantic "Help!" rang in the air and then he thought, I wonder where wee Scouty is. He surely knows that something has gone wrong.

And he was right. Brave Scouty knew. He's raced to see what he could do, and when he reached the Midget Man, he shouted, "Come with me!"

"Wee Duncy's hanging in the air. Oh, he has had an awful scare! Two big giraffes have pulled a trick, as you will shortly see.

"Right now he's hanging o'er a cliff and I'm afraid that he'll fall if we do not run and pull him up. We need a strong, long rope.

"One look, and you will understand. Come on, you Times, lend a hand. If we all pull together, we can save his life, I hope."

"My monkeys and my elephants are used to pulling rescue stunts. I'll call them," said the Midget Man. "I have a rope, right here!"

"We all will do the best we can," cried Coppy. Then the whole bunch ran and gazed down on poor Duncy. Someone shouted, "Have no fear."

"Well, drop a rope, and hurry, please. I'm getting shakey at the knees," cried Duncy. Down the long rope went, and Duncy held it tight.

Brave Scouty and the Midget Man began to pull. A monkey ran up with a tiny elephant and joined them. What a sight!

"Heave ho!" exclaimed wee Duncy. "Geel! Please be as careful as can be." Don't let go of the rope, now, or as sure as fate I'll drop."

"Be quiet," said the Midget Man. "Just try and help us all you can. In just about a moment you'll be pulled right o'er the top!"

(Duncy is safe and sound, in the next story.)

Everyday Religion

By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

In his latest volume of memoirs, Poincare makes an acid remark about the late M. Briand, and his gift for oratorical platitudes. "He was very good at drowning fish," he says, dismissing one of the greatest orators of our generations as one who said undisputed things in such a solemn way. Oddly enough, a fish can be drowned, as every fisherman knows; but the phrase applies to many people besides orators.

All of us are guilty of pouring water into the ocean—that is, arguing to prove what no one denies, which is as useless as rain at sea. Nearly all of our proverbs are examples of it. "Locking the stable after the horse has been stolen," is a case in point. Anybody can be wise after the event. All of us have a little "hind-sight," even if we have no foresight. At least, we can see a thing when it is as big as a camel.

One way of drowning a fish is to say, "I told you so." A man is floundering in the muddy waters of misfortune, owing to some error against which we, in our wisdom, warned him beforehand. He sees the mistake now. It is really necessary to pour an extra pail of ice-water on his head, by reminding him of our superior wisdom, which may have been only a more lucky guess? At such times it is a wise kindness to be silent.

Of all ways of drowning fish none is better than the old saw, "Charity begins at home." It is wise enough if applied to the ugly human trait of being angels abroad and imps at home, but not many of us need curbing on the point of reckless generosity. It is surely deepening the ocean to encourage ourselves to be prudent in giving, and careful not to risk too much for the sake of the cause far off.

No wonder dear John Woolman, the Quaker saint, was made un-

Liverpool Fears Waves From Tug

Liverpool, Ill., April 12 —(AP)—

Navigation on the new Illinois waterway had its disadvantages to certain local residents who feared it might cause destruction of their homes already surrounded by flood waters.

Yesterday they flagged the federal tugboat "General Ashburne" and requested it to proceed very slowly past the village through fear that the waves left in its wake would cause their houses to collapse.

Six families have abandoned their homes and taken refuge in nearby summer cottages until the water recedes. Above and below Liverpool levees were reported as holding the water back, but the village itself is unprotected.

A BOOK A DAY

LOOKING AT THE ABYSS

By Bruce Catton

There is another world than the one most of us inhabit. We rub elbows with it daily without knowing it. It is a world of misery, madness and despair; a half-insane world in which people grope frantically in the dark for faith and security and hope—and don't find them.

We get a glimpse of this world in "Miss Lonely Hearts," by Nathaniel West.

This novel, tells about a flip young reporter for a New York tabloid, whose editor gave him the job of being Miss Lonely Hearts—that legendary tabloid goddess who gives advice to the lovelorn, tells the brokehearted that the sun is still shining behind the clouds, and reels off platitudes for the shipwrecked.

At first the lad takes it as a vast joke. Letters pour in on him in a flood—smudgey, half illiterate, voicing the confusion and desperation of a "submerged tenth" whose very existence most of us prefer to ignore. By the standards of tabloidiana, it is all very funny.

But presently the lad discovers it isn't so side-splitting after all. Despairing hands reach up to him out of the abyss, and he must give them stony instead of bread. His wisecracks fail to comfort him. He makes one futile effort to help one of his readers, botches the job horribly, and then, nauseated, gives up the whole silly business.

This doesn't make a pleasant book. There's no sweetness and light in it. But it does let you peek into this terrible, unknown other world.

0,000 HUNGRY FANS TO ATTEND OPENING GAMES

Major League Baseball Bounds Back Into Sports Picture

Associated Press Sports

New York, April 12 (AP)—In the forefront of the sports picture bunched major league baseball today, ready to combat the tide of depression with a flood of baseball and the tightest pennant fights in years.

An annual opening day gamble with the weather man looked, in the overnight forecasts, like a victory on points for baseball. There was a threat of rain in Philadelphia, Boston and New York, but the other five cities where inaugurals were scheduled—Detroit, St. Louis, Washington, Chicago and Cincinnati—anticipated reasonably clear, if coolish, weather.

With the eight-game program intact, an aggregate attendance in the neighborhood of 200,000 was in prospect. The largest throngs, about 40,000 apiece, were indicated at New York where the New York Yankees open their bid for another American League pennant against the re-organized Boston Red Sox, and at Chicago, where the Chicago Cubs, National League champions, entertained the St. Louis Cardinals. For the others, crowds of from 12,000 to 25,000 were expected.

Better Balances
In keeping with the times, major league managers have instituted the most rigid economies yet accompanied these with a series of wholesale player trades that should arouse new interest in the game and create a better balance in both circuits.

The National League has had more than its share of close championship races in recent years, but the 1933 campaign promises to top them all. Five clubs, the Cubs, Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates, the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Phillies all look strong enough to win the flag provided the "breaks" come their way, with the New York Giants not far behind in pitching comes through. The Boston Braves and Cincinnati Reds have added strength but apparently not in copious enough quantities.

Yankees Face Fight
The world champion Yankees head the American League field but anticipate a much harder battle than a year ago. Washington and the Athletics seem destined to be the chief Yankee annoyances with Cleveland, Detroit and the Chicago White Sox in the next group, and with the St. Louis Browns and Red Sox bringing up the rear.

Babe Ruth, sore throat and all, was ready to take his usual spot in right field for the New York Yankees and demonstrate to all the "Doubting Thomases" that he is far from through, but injuries were to keep a number of famous veterans, including Kiki Cuyler of the Cubs, Travis Jackson of the Giants and Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals, out of the opening day lineups.

Beer was to be sold in the parks at New York, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Chicago. It also would have been available at Boston except for the fact that a license was not obtained in time.

The opening National League pairings brought prospects at Chicago of a great pitching duel between two young right-handers, Lon Warneke of the Cubs and Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals. The Cubs faced the opener with Cuyler out but another outfield ace, Floyd (Babe) Herman had recovered so quickly from a twisted ankle that he was inserted in the lineup. A last minute betting order shake-up sent Herman into the third slot with old Rigs.

stephenson in the cleanup position.

Swift vs. Johnson
The Pirates, a speedy outfit greatly strengthened by the addition of Freddy Lindstrom to the outfield, planned to send young Bill Swift to the firing line against the Reds who were to counter with St. Johnson.

William Watson Clark, clever Brooklyn southpaw, hopes to stop the Phillies' great slugging cast with Austin Moore or Flint Rhem opposing him. President Heydler was to be guest of honor at this game.

The Giants, with four newcomers—Hank Lieber, George Davis, Gus Mancuso and Blondy Ryan—in the lineup, picked Freddy Fitzsimmons to oppose Boston's Huck Betts.

In the American League, the feature pairings pitted the Senators against the Philadelphia Athletics at Washington with President Roosevelt tossing out the first ball. These two clubs, in the advance dope, at least, should give the Yankees a stiff fight all the way. Alvin Crowder, for the Senators, and Bob Grove or big George Earnshaw, for the Athletics, were nominated for pitching duty.

The Yankees planned to start Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, and the same lineup that won the pennant and the world series last year, Ivy Paul Andrews, a youngster who has pitched brilliant ball this spring, was the Red Sox' pitching hope.

The White Sox, their attack bolstered by the addition of Al Simmons, Mule Haas and Jimmy Dykes, called upon Ed Burham to halt the Browns, who bestowed the nomination on Bumps Hadley.

The Cleveland-Detroit duel, involving two leading western contenders, found Clint Bridges of the Indians and Tom Bridges of the Tigers drawing the opening mound assignments. Will Harridge, president of the American League, was to attend.

DeKalb, Ill., April 12 (AP)—The kind of pitching staff every baseball manager dreams about has popped up at the DeKalb Teachers College. Against Joliet Junior College yesterday, five pitchers hurled for the Teachers and allowed a total of only two hits. One of them, a fine prospect named Klein, struck out nine batters in three innings.

The Teachers won 12 to 1, yielding a run on errors.

New York, April 12 (AP)—The New York Yankees faced the opening of the major league season with one remarkable record intact.

When the world champions played their final game last fall they completed a string of 211 games without a shutout. The streak began in August 2, 1931.

Lou Gehrig, wallowing first baseman, also has his eye on Everett Scott's record of playing in 1307 consecutive games. Gehrig's string has reached 1197 and he should surpass Scott's mark late this season.

YOUNG CORBETT AND M'LARNIN BATTLE MAY 20

Agreement Is Finally Achieved By Managers Of Boys

Los Angeles, April 12 (AP)—After three weeks of promotional efforts in which the bout once hung by the slender difference of a foot of adhesive tape, the Young Corbett-Jimmy McLarnin fight for the welterweight championship of the world lacked only the signatures today.

Promoter Jack Doyle brought the managers of the two fighters into agreement, and promised the 10-round encounter would be staged at Wrigley Field here the night of May 20.

George Blake was selected as referee to settle one of the arguments between Larry White, the champion's manager, and Charles (Pop) Foster, who handles McLarnin's affairs.

The squabble over the amount of tape and bandages, which constituted the basis for the last barrier to bringing the two battlers together was ended when it was decided an unlimited amount of gauze and 4 feet 6 inches of tape for each hand would be permissible.

White had held out for a limit of 4 feet of tape, while Foster wanted 6 feet, came down to five, and later fair.

CASEY AT THE BAT

THE outlook wasn't brilliant for the Mudville nine that day; The score stood four to two, with but one inning more to play; And so, when Cooney died at first, and Burrows did the same, A sickly silence fell upon the patrons of the game.

But Flynn let drive a single, to the wonderment of all; And Blake, the much despised, tore the cover off the ball; And when the dust had lifted, and they saw what had occurred, There was Jimmy safe on second, and Flynn a-hugging third.

There was ease in Casey's manner as he stepped into his place; There was pride in Casey's bearing, and a smile on Casey's face; And when, responding to the cheers, he lightly doffed his hat, No stranger in the crowd could doubt 'twas Casey at the bat.

And now the leather-covered sphere came hurtling through the air, And Casey stood a- watching it in haughty grandeur there; Close by the sturdy batsman the ball unheeded sped, "That ain't my style," said Casey. "Strike one," the umpire said.

With a smile of Christian charity great Casey's visage shone; He stilled the rising tumult; he bade the game go on; He signaled to the pitcher, and once more the spheroid flew, But Casey still ignored it, and the umpire said "Strike two."

The sneer is gone from Casey's lips, his teeth are clenched in hate, He pounds with cruel violence his bat upon the plate; And now the pitcher holds the ball, and now he lets it go, And now the air is shattered by the force of Casey's blow.

Oh! somewhere in this favored land the sun is shining bright, The band is playing somewhere, and somewhere hearts are light; And somewhere men are laughing, and somewhere children shout, But there is no joy in Mudville—mighty Casey has struck out.

Science Brings these New Beauty Creams

The Skin is Cleansed in a New Way

Women have been quick to recognize the common sense of the Denton method of cleansing. The dirt is actually dissolved in the pores by the action of magnesium salts, instead of being rubbed off or out, as is the case with all soaps or ordinary cleansing creams. Such agents only loosen dirt, which must be actually removed by old fashioned washcloths or tissue. And besides, forcing heavy, greasy creams into the pores so often distends and enlarges instead of reducing them.

Denton's Magnesia Creams are light and greaseless; they penetrate the deep pores to search out dirt particles. And because the magnesium dissolves dirt immediately on contact, rubbing and massage are secondary. Thus the delicate skin structure is protected and enlarged pores are quickly reduced. So soothing and gentle is the action of magnesium that it is the first thing given to babies. As incorporated in the special Denton formula, it likewise becomes indispensable to the woman who wants her skin to retain the glowing freshness of youth.

Skin Acids that Coarsen are Neutralized

Just as important as the cleansing power of magnesium is its long recognized ability to neutralize acids. Dermatologists now know that it is just as necessary to neutralize skin acids as it is those of the mouth or stomach. From the twenty or more ounces of acid excretion that the normal skin must throw off each day, comes coarse texture, enlarged, clogged pores, or dry skin. Every woman knows the effect of such acids on dainty undergarments. They act the same on the skin, especially the young new skin growing under the outer epidermis.

Denton's Magnesia Creams neutralize the acids lurking deep in the skin pores, and thus keep the texture soft and lovely. After cleansing with the Magnesia Creme, use Denton's Nourishing Cream to feed the growing skin cells. With this simple treatment every woman can take into the dreaded thirties youth's soft lovely glowing complexion.

● Make this Test Today. Try Denton's for ten days. Compare with your favorite cream. If you don't think them better your money will be cheerfully refunded.

The block of concrete poured at the George Washington Masonic memorial is not the largest single block of concrete ever poured at one time. There is much work on dams, canal locks, etc., that exceed it, but for the limited area covered the statement can be safely made that this is one of the heaviest unit any building. It contains 8,794 cubic yards of 12-3 concrete and 720 tons of 14-inch square reinforcing bars.

A number of married men were recently dining together at their club. The question was asked "What trait in your wife do you consider the most expensive one?" The last man to whom the question was put answered graciously, "Her tears!" Exchange.

LT. AUSTIN WAS SPEAKER BEFORE DIXON KIWANIS

He Told Of Life Of Co. A Guardsmen At Springfield

Declaring that in his opinion formed after two weeks observation of conditions existing in the coal mining area of Springfield and Taylorville, wholesale bloodshed was bound to result unless an agreement was reached soon, Lieut. D. C. Austin of Company A, 129th Infantry, which returned home Monday evening from two weeks patrol duty in the Springfield area, told members of the Dixon Kiwanis club Tuesday that the situation was extremely acute.

"Our presence in the Springfield area did not change the situation one bit, but tended only to maintain order within the restricted zones during our stay," Lieut. Austin stated. "The members of the Dixon company were called everything during their stay but were successful in maintaining military order in spite of this."

The speaker gave a vivid description of conditions which have been unknown to Illinoisans living outside of the troubled area. The trouble is not a question of union or non-union but a difficulty inside the miners' ranks, from the best information that can be secured, he said. United miners are friendly to the National Guardsmen while the Progressive group treat the troops with the utmost contempt and abuse.

Company A was assigned to duty guarding the Peers, Capitol and Woodside mines, he stated. The wage scale being paid miners at the present time ranged from $4.75 to $9.90 daily and again voicing his own opinion of the condition, the speaker stated that outsiders were attempting to graft on the situation with no interest of the miners at heart.

Minor Skirmishes

He explained the methods of patrolling the mine properties in which members of the Dixon company engaged in numerous minor skirmishes but were not called into service any major troubles. The Dixon guardsmen were furnished with new side arms, clubs, which the speaker stated had a convincing psychological effect in patrolling the trouble zones. In these areas persons were not permitted to gather in groups of more than two and where three were found conversing, they were quickly dispersed, although not at all times to the liking of the sympathizers. Tear gas bombs and candles and ammunition was furnished to the patrols with careful instructions as to their use. None of the tear gas was used by the Dixon company in its two weeks stay in the Springfield district. Squad cars and trucks were used in patrolling the three large mines with other motor conveyances available at all times to rush reinforcements to any point in the event of a major outbreak. Machine guns and experienced operators accompanied each of these details.

Lieut. Austin gave some stories of the comical side of the duty of the patrols both in the Springfield and Taylorville areas, relating certain "maneuvers" which were necessarily practiced in the latter district when thousands of women sympathizers blocked the highway.

Dixon Acting Major

Referring to the march of the unemployed from Chicago and other points, directed at Springfield, the speaker said that Captain Sherwood Dixon of this city had been named acting major and was accorded airplane service in halting the groups before reaching the state capital through a carefully planned program which was highly effective. Residents of Springfield looked forward with great anticipation to the arrival of the vast army of marchers, he said, as a climax to the long drawn out miners' troubles.

He told in a very interesting manner of a half day spent in the Capitol mine in which two local high school students, members of the company, were privileged to inspect modern coal mining methods and to actually mine the coal.

In concluding his talk, Lieut. Austin stated that it was estimated that the state of Illinois was expending approximately $30,000 monthly in the maintenance of troops in the Springfield and Taylorville mining areas alone. He told of many unwarranted bombings among the warring mining factions and said that in his opinion the situation was extremely acute and that unless some agreement is reached soon, wholesale bloodshed is certain to take place.

JANET HILL breaks her engagement to ROLF CARLYLE when she learns he had been paying attention to BETTY KENDALL, wealthy society girl. Janet, 23, is secretary to BRUCE HAMMILL, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine. She still loves ROLF.

JEFF GRANT, young engineer, saves her purse from a holdup man just as she leaves her home. When she learns ROLF has eloped with Betty she tells Jeff about her broken engagement and says she can never care for anyone else.

Hamilton leaves the magazine and secures a job for Janet as social secretary to his sister, MRS. CURTIS. It is several days before Janet learns Mrs. Curtis is Betty Kendall's mother. Then she feels she should go away but circumstances prevent.

ROLF and BETTY return from their honeymoon and move to their own apartment. Mrs. Curtis goes to Silver Bay, a lake resort, taking Janet with her. They stay a month. One night shortly after their return Janet and ROLF are with Jeff. They see a man and girl beside a wrecked car. Jeff stops and offers to take the couple to the nearest farm house. Janet recognizes the girl as Betty Carlyle and the man as "VAN" CARLYLE. A few days later Betty asks her mother to discharge Janet. Mrs. Curtis refuses. That evening she is called to the telephone and comes back, excited, crying, "Betty's been robbed!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLII

THERE were five persons in the bedroom with its low, modernistic furnishings in orange and ivory and black. All of the lights in the room were burning. Drawers of the dressing table had been pulled out and left open. A dress lay discarded across a chair and a man had been tossed on the bed.

Betty Carlyle was the center of the group. She wore a gold-colored negligee that caught and held the light and she would have looked very beautiful except for the anger in her face.

"But I tell you I've looked!" she exclaimed. "Everywhere. The necklace isn't here and someone's stolen it! I know it was in my jewel case—"

"When did you see it last?" Mrs. Curtis asked.

Betty stamped a foot impatiently. "Why do you keep asking the same questions?" she demanded. "I told you I haven't seen it for a week. It was in the case where I always keep it. I haven't been wearing the necklace—just my bracelets."

"And the bracelets?"

"They're still here. That's one of the queer things about it. Someone must have come into the apartment while I was away and taken the pearl necklace."

Rolf Carlyle moved toward a table and flicked the ashes from his cigarette into a tray. "You know I've told you you shouldn't keep all that stuff here in the house," he said. "It isn't safe. Why, with your rings and those two bracelets and the other things you wear, there must be a couple of thousand dollars' worth of jewels in this room."

"More than that," Mrs. Curtis said. "The necklace cost $800—"

A BELL sounded sharply and Marie, the maid, who had been standing in the background, turned to answer it. Marie's eyes were red as though she had been weeping.

"That's the police, I suppose," Betty said.

"We might have been murdered in our beds for all that loot!" Rolf grumbled as the four trailed into the living room—Betty followed by Rolf and Mrs. Curtis and lastly Janet.

A policeman and a smaller man in a brown suit stood in the doorway. The man in brown stepped forward.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—There was genuine relief in evidence on capitol hill among members of congress when that perennial subject of beer was finally cleared from the legislative decks.

Both proponents and opponents of legalization of the beverage were happy that it was at last out of the way.

As Mrs. Mary Norton of New Jersey, chairman of the committee in the house that made beer available to the residents of Washington, expressed it:

"The house is so tired of the subject of beer that it seems no longer necessary to maintain order in the chamber when the subject is under consideration. I want to get rid of the subject for all time."

The fact that congress legislates for the District of Columbia, and had to go back over the same ground to provide beer for Washington that it traversed in considering the national legislation, is perhaps the reason the subject became so trying on congressional nerves.

Cut And Dried

It was the same procedure every time the question came up in the house. Almost every move could be called beforehand.

A member of the committee in charge of the legislation would bring up one phase of the subject for consideration. Immediately Tom Blanton of Texas would be on his feet.

Blanton, a skillful parliamentarian seemed to be using every trick he had in his parliamentary bag fighting beer. He would demand roll calls, make points of no quorum, force division of votes—everything that would cause delay.

On the day the house took final action, when it was apparent that he was fighting a hopeless battle, he appeared as determined as ever.

Game To The End

"I have done everything within the power of one mortal man," he shouted, "to stop the passage of the beer bill. . . Mr. Speaker, this bill will be signed in the White House today, and shortly thereafter we will have beer sold in this capitol."

"But it will not be by my vote!" Blanton's dogged persistence in opposing beer made a good show in the house. A forceful speaker, he never failed to hold his colleagues' attention. They didn't agree with him—most of them—but they listened just the same.

Daily Health Talk

CONVALESCENCE

It is truism that in all illnesses we must treat the patient as well as the disease.

The child recuperating from an acute attack of rheumatic fever or from a bout with whooping-cough, the adult who has become bedridden because of a serious bone fracture or who is recovering from tuberculosis present a problem psychological as well as physical.

The integrity of the personality of the individual must be maintained. His interest in life, his progression, his living momentum, must be sustained, or else, when he finally recovers, we shall find him a less useful individual.

We have become particularly aware of this problem in recent years, because we have recognized the value of a proper convalescence period.

When the disease has been overcome there follows a period in which we must help the individual to recover lost ground. In the case of a child, this lost ground means not only physical growth, but also mental, educational and behavioristic progress.

The patient must therefore be treated during his illness and convalescence in such a way that the non-physical losses are kept at a minimum.

Hospitals and sanatoria of various kinds have to a measure recognized their problem. Added to their medical are to be found psychotherapeutic services designed to bolster up and maintain the psychological phases of the patient's being.

The home-treated patient and particularly the child are, however, likely to be neglected.

In the concern for the physical well-being of the little sufferer sight is lost of the need for continued progress in his studies.

Because the child is ill we are likely to allow him to become tyrannical, self-centered and selfish. The result is that when the child finally recovers it is physically well but spoiled in character.

Chesterfields just go along in their own quiet way making friends from day to day.

There's no noise about it, no "back talk."

The Chesterfield slogan—just two words, "They Satisfy"—is a plain simple statement telling about Chesterfield's merits.

It means that Chesterfields are milder—they taste better.
